Dominique Fite Joins GCG'S New York City Office
GCG expands class action business development team

Lake Success, N.Y. (Feb. 26, 2013) –The Garden City Group, Inc. (GCG), a recognized leader in class action settlement and bankruptcy administration, is proud to announce that Dominique Fite, senior consultant, business development, has joined the company's class action team.

As a senior consultant and member of GCG's business development team, Fite will focus on class action initiatives based out of GCG's New York City office. "We are pleased to have Dominique as an addition to our growing class action team," said Greg Haber, national director, business development. "Her background and industry knowledge will bring tremendous value to our business development group."

Prior to joining GCG, Fite was a business development and client relations consultant at Cohen, Milstein, Sellers & Toll PLLC, within the firm's securities litigation group. In her role, she researched, identified and nurtured relationships with public pension fund stakeholders, developed targeted presentations and was responsible for retaining pension fund clients with millions of dollars in assets. Fite's experience includes ERISA and consumer protection issues, including predatory lending, mortgage misconduct and fraudulent foreclosure practices. She earned her J.D. from American University, Washington College of Law and her B.A., magna cum laude, from New York University.

"I am excited to join GCG's team and look forward to supporting the Company's growth initiatives," said Fite.
