Crawford & Company (Canada) Inc. Grows Cyber Practice in Canada

TORONTO (November 27, 2017) – Crawford & Company (Canada) Inc. today announced that it has grown its global cyber practice with the addition of Neal Jardine, cyber practice leader, Canada. With the ever increasing risk of cyber-attacks and data breaches worldwide, and as part of a larger global cyber practice, Crawford & Company’s® established and effective cyber program is comprised of more than 100 accredited incident managers and adjusters throughout the world. As the sole cyber loss management partner for a number of international insurer clients and corporations, Crawford is a leading cyber claim management expert for the marketplace.

As a seasoned senior general adjuster with Crawford’s Global Technical Services (GTS®) division, Neal Jardine has more than a decade of experience, both domestically and internationally, adjusting property and casualty claims, including cyber losses. Leveraging his experience as a professional loss adjuster and academic credentials in computer science, Jardine possesses a unique set of skills and knowledge to effectively mitigate cyber losses. His technical understanding of network architecture, data management systems and their supporting technologies enables him to identify risks and best respond to client needs following a cyber incident.

“We are fortunate to be able to leverage Crawford’s global cyber team to bring to the Canadian market proven best practices in our cyber incident response model,” said Paul Hancock, vice president, Global Technical Services (GTS®), Canada. “Neal is well placed to develop our Canadian practice and access the technical resources of the delivery model.”

More details of Crawford’s global cyber risk program are available on the company’s website.
